Lifechanyuan Values:

What is Material Wealth?

1. Blue skies and white clouds, green mountains and clear waters;
2. A beautiful environment and fresh air;
3. Fragrant flowers and lush fruits;
4. Birds soaring and butterflies and bees dancing;
5. Winding paths and idyllic countryside;
6. Shelter, clothing, chickens, ducks, fish, and livestock;
7. Fertile land, vehicles, and tools;
8. Euros, dollars, and Chinese yuan.

All of these are material wealth.

Traditional views consider material wealth to mean money, houses, vehicles, and land. In fact, these are only a limited portion. A greater form of wealth is the surrounding environment, both large and small. When someone possesses billions but lives in an environment filled with smog, foul odors, waste, and noise, he is truly poor—his material wealth is pitiful.

A person who finds themselves in a picturesque environment is truly rich, even if they have no bank savings, if their house is a simple hut, if they have no car or brand-name clothing. His wealth is boundless: the bright sunshine, morning and evening clouds, blue sky, white clouds, green mountains, clear waters, fresh air, birds, butterflies, bees, wild grasses, flowers, frogs, insects, trees, soil, fragrant paths, the crow of a rooster, the bark of a dog, gentle breezes, green bamboo, and a graceful courtyard. Aren't these all his material wealth?

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "What Belongs to Material Wealth"

What is integrity? Integrity is honesty plus trustworthiness, that is: honesty + trustworthiness = integrity.

Sincerity without deceit, keeping promises, being consistent inside and out, and valuing one's word as priceless are all manifestations of integrity.

There are three major treasures in life: material wealth, spiritual wealth, and wealth of the soul. Among these, wealth of the soul is the primary wealth, spiritual wealth is the secondary, and material wealth is the third. Integrity belongs to the wealth of the soul, which makes integrity the first wealth in life.

Since integrity is the first wealth in life, pursuing integrity is the primary aim of being human. If a person lacks integrity, it shows that they are deficient in wealth of the soul and are spiritually impoverished. A person lacking in the wealth of the soul is also certain to lack spiritual wealth. Although those who lack integrity may acquire material wealth, even in great quantities, they will never attain inner peace, mental calm, emotional tranquility, or a sense of security.

Those who practice integrity are angels; those who lack it are descendants of demons. People who do not uphold integrity have no bright future and will not be accepted into the kingdom of heaven.

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "Integrity Is the First Wealth in Life"

Life requires three major forms of wealth: material wealth, spiritual wealth, and wealth of the soul. To possess these three types of wealth, one needs a clear and lucid mind. Therefore, the greatest wealth in life is a clear and lucid mind.

What is the most beautiful kind of life?

A life where one has a clear and lucid mind, yet lives quietly without flaunting, appearing ordinary, with no worries about food, clothing, shelter, or daily needs; surrounded by a few or even dozens of kindred spirits who connect on a deep physical, mental, and emotional level. In moments of leisure, sitting together and talking over drinks about the simple joys of life, living a pastoral, communal life; spiritually and emotionally abundant, while materially having enough food and shelter—isn't that beautiful?

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "The Greatest Wealth in Life Is a Clear and Lucid Mind"

When a person makes the pursuit of material wealth the main theme of their life's efforts, there is no doubt that money will not bring the elevation of their soul but will instead lead to its decline.

Money is merely a form of energy, and energy can only make a cabbage grow larger, but it will never turn a cabbage into a peony. When you see a very wealthy person, do not assume that their soul is noble; what you are seeing is merely a large, fat cabbage.

The conclusion is that material wealth makes a despicable soul more despicable and a noble soul more noble, but material wealth itself cannot save a person's soul. What saves a person's soul are the wealth of the soul and spiritual wealth.

Therefore, the focus of one's life should be on pursuing the wealth of the soul and spiritual wealth. No matter how thin a white swan is, it cannot be compared to a fat crow; no matter how thin the swan, a fat rooster cannot compare to its elegance and nobility.

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "Material Wealth Cannot Save the Soul"

There are 24 treasures in life. If you possess all of them, you are the richest person in the world. Even if you have only half, 12 items, you are not poor. See how many of these you have.

1. Sunshine; 2. Blue sky; 3. Drinking water; 4. Clean air; 5. A small plot of land; 6. The ability to hear roosters crowing and birds singing; 7. Salt; 8. Having something to do every day; 9. Having clothes to wear; 10. Having a house to live in; 11. Having food to fill your stomach; 12. Being cared for, loved, helped, and remembered by someone; 13. Having one or two close friends who truly understand you; 14. Having someone in your heart to care for, love, and think about; 15. Being able to eat watermelons and peaches in the summer; 16. Having a phone and books to read; 17. Frequently having friends or relatives visit or being able to visit them; 18. Having a healthy body; 19. Being debt-free and not owing anyone money; 20. Having beliefs and ideals; 21. Having goals in life and a sense of direction; 22. Having a heart willing to serve others; 23. Having an open-minded, optimistic, and romantic disposition; 24. Having fulfilling romantic partners.

If you possess the 24 treasures mentioned above, you are the richest person in the world. From now on, do not envy emperors, wealthy individuals, or government officials, because you are the most fortunate person on earth.

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "How Many of Life's 24 Treasures Do You Have?"

A person's life is a process of accumulating wealth.

There are three types of wealth in life: material wealth, spiritual wealth, and soul wealth.

Material wealth is the tangible possessions that sustain the body, represented by money, such as currency, gold, silver, jewelry, real estate, vehicles, land, food, household appliances, clothing, industries, and so on.

Spiritual wealth refers to the factors that make consciousness, thinking, thoughts, and the mind active, healthy, free, joyful, comfortable, and happy. Examples include knowledge (books), skills, experiences, family relationships, friendship, love, religion, nation, country, reputation, and status.

Soul wealth is the intangible energy and information that elevate the quality of life and lead the nonmaterial structure of LIFE to evolve towards perfection. This includes the spirit of the Greatest Creator, the operating program of the Tao, divine revelation, the teachings of the Buddha, spiritual cultivation, inspiration, and spiritual awareness.

The five elements—wood, fire, earth, metal, and water—nurture and restrain each other, and the balance of symmetry brings blessings. Ignoring any one of the three types of wealth will prevent you from achieving a perfect life and lead you down a distorted path. Those who only have material wealth but lack spiritual and soul wealth are like the sick; they are prone to crime, suicide, and abusing life and nature. Those who only have spiritual wealth but lack material and soul wealth are also sick; they are likely to become deceivers, boastful and unproductive, prone to trickery and opportunism, and may become parasites indulging in pleasures or ambitious schemers. Those who only possess soul wealth without material and spiritual wealth are likewise unwell; such individuals can become obsessed and fanatical, manipulating concepts, appearing both human and ghostly, filled with negative energy, and are likely to exploit the names of deities and spirits to create chaos and harm society, straying from humanity and nature.

A perfect life should be like this: a lifetime of learning knowledge and acquiring skills. Based on knowledge and skills, one should continuously acquire an appropriate amount of material wealth through diligent and honest work. However, one must never take the pursuit of material wealth as the ultimate goal of life, nor become a slave to material wealth. Love nature, cherish family, friendship, and love, value a good reputation, appreciate the insights and revelations of deities and Buddhas, listen to the teachings of sages and philosophers, have reverence for the Greatest Creator and for LIFE. Continuously cultivate and practice, strive to ascend to the highest realms of life and existence, evolve towards perfection, and ultimately fulfill one's heart, settle earthly debts, transcend worldly attachments, accumulate virtue, understand the mysteries of LIFE, and greet death with joy and excitement, finally reaching the ultimate paradise of existence.

~from the article written by Xuefeng, "The Three Great Wealths of Life"

Which treasures belong to heaven?

The universal key that unlocks all mysteries is: consciousness, structure, and energy. Whether tangible or intangible, treasures belong to the realm of energy.

What is energy? Answer: The ability that shapes and maintains the operation of both matter and antimatter is called energy. Energy can be divided into three types: material energy, spiritual energy, and soul energy.

Material energy includes light energy, electrical energy, wind energy, thermal energy, protein, food nutritional reactions, chemical reactions, and other forms of kinetic energy, etc.

Spiritual energy includes friendship, familial love, knowledge, experience, skills, property, reputation, status, power, beauty, and other forms of potential energy, etc

Soul energy includes faith in the Greatest Creator, gods, Buddhas, celestials, and heaven; belief and yearning for a better future; love, romance, sex, wisdom, truth, goodness, beauty, music, dance, poetry, and other artistic beauty, etc.

Heavenly treasures mainly refer to soul energy; material and spiritual energies do not belong to heavenly treasures.

How to accumulate heavenly treasures?

1. Reverence for the Greatest Creator, reverence for LIFE, reverence for nature; walking the path of the Greatest Creator is to accumulate treasures in heaven.
2. Selflessly dedicating love is to accumulate treasures in heaven.
3. Resolving grievances and animosities, bringing peace and warmth to others and society is to accumulate treasures in heaven.
4. Generating good thoughts and performing good deeds is to accumulate treasures in heaven.
5. Praising the Greatest Creator, praising Jesus Christ, praising Buddha Sakyamuni, praising Laozi, praising the prophet Muhammad, praising the saints and sages of human history, praising LIFE, praising life, praising others, praising and protecting nature is to accumulate treasures in heaven.
6. Giving others confidence in life, encouraging them to yearn for a better future, alleviating their anxiety, sorrow, fear, and worries is to accumulate treasures in heaven.

7. Providing others with beautiful love and sex that brings no spiritual, mental, or physical harm and suffering is to accumulate treasures in heaven.

8. Fully showcasing one's artistic beauty is to accumulate treasures in heaven.

Why did I choose Lifechanyuan?

I have been experiencing life on Earth for 35 years now. According to conventional thinking, I should be: successful in my career, with a happy family, children, and the chance to say, "The world is so big, I want to see it," as I pursue the freedom that comes with wealth. But in reality? If I hadn't encountered the Lifechanyuan, if I hadn't met Guide Xuefeng, and if I hadn't formed connections with the Chanyuan Celestials, I might now still be someone who needs to take several kinds of medication daily just to ensure sleep and emotional stability, endure the torment of an incurable cancer—plasma cell mastitis—while also bearing the psychological pressure of being a double mastectomy patient, feeling neither male nor female, weighing 90 kilograms, unmarried, and childless, an orphan.

Why did I choose Lifechanyuan? The reasons are as follows:

1. If I did not choose Lifechanyuan, I would only be able to spend my days tirelessly chasing material wealth. My soul would not be able to elevate, and this would also lead to my physical body suffering from various illnesses and becoming as overweight as an old lady.

“Material wealth refers to tangible resources that the body relies on for survival, represented by money, such as currency, gold and silver, jewelry, real estate, vehicles, land, food, household appliances, clothing, industries, etc.” ~ Xuefeng

If I had not chosen Lifechanyuan, at 35 years old, I would have: two unfinished two-bedroom apartments without property certificates, about 60,000 yuan in savings, unmarried, childless, with both parents deceased, weighing 90 kilograms, and perhaps still working as a foreign trade salesperson, eating takeout every day. During work, I would constantly order food, whether it was desserts, spicy tomato soup, ice cream, chicken legs, chicken fillets, milk tea, or cold noodles. My three meals a day would basically be like this, rarely buying groceries and cooking for myself. My monthly salary would average around 4,000 yuan, with no upper limit because it's a sales job, mainly depending on my own performance, but the internal pressure would be immense. I would still need to figure out how to earn more money to resolve the property certificates, legally change the names on them from my parents' names to mine, and then think of how to find a buyer to sell one of the apartments while keeping the other to renovate and live in.

2. If I did not choose Lifechanyuan, I would have no spiritual wealth, and I would need to take several kinds of medication daily to stabilize my emotions and control my sleep. I would also need to maintain regular communication with my treating physician for plasma cell mastitis to avoid needing to undergo local or general anesthesia for minimally invasive surgery.

"Spiritual wealth refers to the many factors that keep consciousness, thinking, thoughts, and psychology active, healthy, free, joyful, comfortable, and happy, such as knowledge (books), skills, experience, family affection, friendship, love, religion, ethnicity, country, reputation, status, etc." ~ Xuefeng

The details are as follows:

1. In 2010, after experiencing heartbreak from my first love and feeling misunderstood by my parents, I faced extreme pain and despair while working at the Taiwanese company Hongsheng Leather.

I had to survive, and I started as a foreign trade merchandise coordinator. After a year, I had to endure the arrogant attitude of the office management and the hardship and low wages faced by the female workers in the factory. The male supervisors in the factory pretended to work hard but often lost their temper during meetings, throwing chairs and yelling at us coordinators. Consequently, I was under immense pressure, and my temper became increasingly irritable. Having trained in martial arts for years, my temperament and approach to problems were very masculine at the time.

I was surrounded by the roar of sewing machines in the first-floor workshop and often worked overtime until after 9 PM without overtime pay. If I left work at 5:30 PM, I would be subjected to inhumane criticism and insults from the office administrators the next morning. We didn't even have weekends, with only half a day off each week, and my salary was only 1,620 yuan. Due to the long distance to the company, I had to live in the company dormitory, and the employee meals mostly consisted of cabbage and rice. It was the second half of 2010, and the struggle for survival left me feeling incredibly heartbroken. During that time, I met my first male online friend, and after a chance encounter, we had a brief romantic experience that left me with "aftereffects." My rural mother, who had always seen me as her "dragon and phoenix," was furious and threatened to say, "I have no one to rely on." The pain of work, the disappointment of my first love, and my parents' misunderstanding and harshness made me want to end my life; I didn't know why I should continue living. However, life had to go on.

2. Unable to endure my parents' misunderstanding and the exploitation by the Taiwanese company, I began to seek liberation.

One day, while I was sent by the company for training at the headquarters in Dongguan, Guangdong, I came across some prophecies about the "2012 Apocalypse" online and learned from the Mars Boy that there would be a great guiding spirit in western China. After completing my two-month training in Dongguan and returning to my hometown, I decided to take half a day off, turned off my phone, and went to the Reclining Buddha Hall at Ciyun Temple in my hometown to pray. I hoped that the Buddha would bless me to live until 2012 and find that great spiritual guide. I vowed to give up everything to follow him and help him fulfill that sacred mission. A week later, I read an article by the guide Xuefeng from Lifechanyuan about "The Year of 2013" online, which led me to the Lifechanyuan website. Upon learning that Xuefeng was from Gansu and started building the Second Home community in Yunnan, I fell in love at first sight and spent over 700 yuan on Taobao to purchase the complete set of "Chanyuan Corpus" and "Xuefeng Corpus." After reading all of it in a month, my favorite chapter was the one that mentioned Chanyuan Celestials from different countries will happily live together. I then wrote an article applying to become a Chanyuan Celestial.

On March 21, 2011, I received a precious Chanyuan Celestial's name—Xidai Celestial. Starting July 1, 2011, I lived in the branches of Lifechanyuan International Family in Yunnan, China—Anning, Chuxiong, and Lincang—as well as Nanhua Farm in Nanjing, Qinge Ma and Katel Farm in Xinjiang, until the end of December 2014, when I returned to my hometown after suffering a mental breakdown due to my obsession with a male Chanyuan Celestial from outside, which caused harm to many Chanyuan Celestials in Katel Farm in Xinjiang. In the branches of Lifechanyuan International Family in China, due to the frustration from my first love, I was somewhat indifferent to physical intimacy at that time. During my time in the China branch, I felt that there was no significant spiritual elevation for me; I mostly experienced the joy and happiness of collective living. Moreover, I deified Xuefeng in my mind and had a vague understanding of 800 Values for New Era Humans and other Lifechanyuan values.

3. From 2015 to 2017, I tried various jobs and once again deeply experienced the difficulties of survival and the pain of doing work I did not like. From 2018 to 2021, I began working as an English teacher for elementary and middle school students and entered a painful three-year marriage without a certificate.

Starting in 2015, I worked as a Tmall customer service representative at Cai Zhi Yuan Printing Factory, a computer operator at a bookstore in the city center, and a computer operator at a driving school not far from home. Since I was only doing these jobs for money and not utilizing my English skills, I often felt helpless and bored. In January 2018, encouraged by my mother and introduced by relatives, I started working at a tutoring center called “Yixiu Education,” run by my cousin, teaching English to elementary and middle school students. During my time there, I saw students being treated like exam machines, with their psychological well-being and natural inclinations completely ignored and suppressed. I witnessed many younger students with severe psychological problems and some male middle school students who were failing and had serious aversion to studying. Meanwhile, female colleagues continually encouraged parents to have their children take extra classes, even on weekends, just to survive and make a living. Older male teachers would belittle and insult male students with low grades. These cruel, cold, and baffling phenomena led me to despair regarding English teaching and feelings of anger and dissatisfaction with society.

At the same time, to avoid the strange looks and comments from my cousin, colleagues, relatives, and even the cook, and to keep this hard-won job, I felt I had to choose marriage at the age of 30 and begin enduring three years of a painful marriage and a high-pressure teaching job. As a result, I suffered from severe insomnia and had to take medication to sleep well, while my emotions remained volatile and aggressive. In 2019, my father suddenly passed away, which severely impacted my mental state, forcing me to resign from this job that was both painful and unavoidable. Once my emotions stabilized, I took teaching positions at Panlong Education in my hometown, Squirrel AI Education in the city, Rise English, and Only English. However, I was unable to stop taking medication for sleep and emotional control, which led to a condition called Plasma cell mastitis, often referred to as the “incurable cancer.” Essentially, it is a benign condition, but due to its chronic nature, repeated occurrences, and poor response to conventional treatments, it is as hard to shake off as “cancer.” Any anger or even indulging in barbecue could trigger a recurrence. After five general anesthesia and six local anesthesia minimally invasive surgeries, besides my primary physician—Director Xu Jingxiu—who was willing to continue performing minimally invasive surgeries to preserve my breasts, other doctors, including those in the mental health field, advised that it would be best to remove my breasts to eliminate the condition completely. At that time, I needed to prepare for the teacher qualification exam and had entered the married life, which led to serious disagreements with the teachings of Xue Feng, the guide of Lifechanyuan, regarding love and sexual values. I often attacked and hurt Xue Feng and many chanyuan celestials I had lived with, eventually resulting in Xue Feng permanently revoking my chanyuan celestial's name in Lifechanyuan.

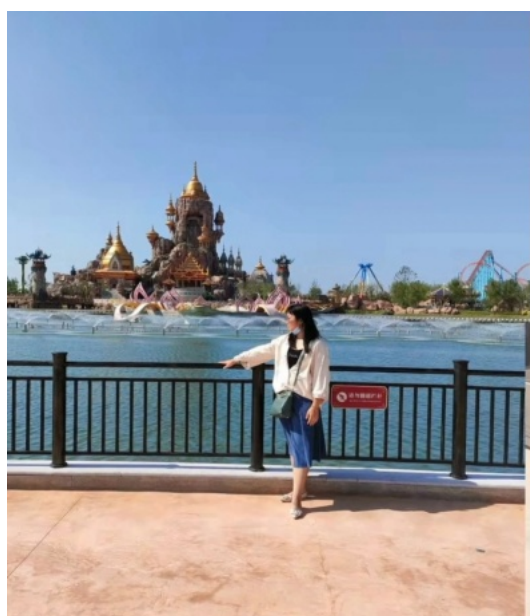

4. In 2021, on the day Lifechanyuan was designated a cult by the Chinese government, I had a conflict with my ex-boyfriend at home, which caused my elderly mother to become so upset that she suffered a collapse and was later diagnosed with multiple myeloma at the end of the year. This left her bedridden. My ex-boyfriend broke up with me during the Spring Festival of 2022 because I was still taking medication and using contraception, and at that time, I began to change my career to work as a foreign trade salesperson.

I thought that leaving Lifechanyuan would allow me to live happily and healthily, but the reality was that my weight suddenly skyrocketed to 90 kilograms. From December 2018, when I got married, until my breakup in February 2022, my weight remained around 90 kilograms. Losing weight was difficult, and due to my busy work schedule, I had no time to exercise. After experiencing the failure of my marriage, the onset of various health issues, and immense psychological trauma, even though my mother often took me to church to learn the teachings of Jesus Christ during our marriage and I was frequently prayed for by capable pastors, my situation did not improve significantly. On the contrary, I felt even more lost and pained inside, constantly worrying about the unknown risks of remarriage and being an older mother after breaking up with my ex-boyfriend.

What I found even harder to bear was that at the end of 2021, my only support—my 73-year-old mother—was diagnosed with multiple myeloma and began to be bedridden. This was a devastating blow for me as her daughter. Soon after my breakup with my ex-boyfriend, I sought help again from Xue Feng, the guide of Lifechanyuan, sincerely admitting my mistakes. I rewrote an application to regain my status as a Chanyuan Celestial and earnestly requested Xue Feng to give me another chance. I promised that I would be willing to sell my house and give all the money from the sale to Lifechanyuan to follow him. Seeing my determination to become a Chanyuan Celestial, Xue Feng granted me a new Chanyuan Celestial's name—"Jiejing Celestial"—on March 13, 2022, and thus began a new chapter of my life, putting everything on the line for a fresh start.

5. Starting in April 2022, with the encouragement and guidance of Xue Feng, I successfully worked as a foreign trade salesperson for a year and became the only salesperson in the company to secure five international client orders. After my mother passed away on March 16, 2023, and I had taken care of her funeral arrangements, I felt a sense of liberation and moved to Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch.

My mother passed away around 5:30 AM on March 16, 2023. Immediately, I contacted Xue Feng, who promptly replied, encouraging me to move to Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch. As a result, while dealing with my mother's affairs, I didn't feel much sadness; instead, I experienced a sense of relief and excitement about stepping outside the country for the first time.

I didn't expect that most of the 200,000 yuan saved by my hardworking farmer parents for the renovation of two relocated houses would be used for my mother's medical treatment and caregiver expenses. Even more surprising was that from the remaining 70,000 yuan left to me by my mother, I would need to spend 20,000 yuan on the funeral and to give gifts to relatives. These experiences and feelings about money made me truly realize that I am completely unsuitable for the worldly ways. I no longer wanted or was willing to work in the secular world, and I had no money to handle the property deeds for the two houses, nor did I have the funds to renovate them.

Thus, on April 21, 2023, I arrived at Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch, gradually donating all of my remaining yuan to the Thai community. I did this because I wanted to seriously learn and experience the celestial's consciousness and state of "Having nothing, yet owning everything".

3. If I do not choose Lifechanyuan, I will have no soul wealth and no way to accumulate the treasures of heaven, let alone gain health, happiness, and freedom.

"Soul energy is like the belief in the Greatest Creator, gods, Buddhas, celestials, and heaven, as well as the faith and longing for a beautiful future, love, affection, sexual love, wisdom, the pursuit of truth, goodness, beauty, music, dance, poetry, and other forms of artistic beauty, etc. The treasures of heaven mainly refer to soul energy; material energy and spiritual energy do not belong to the treasures of heaven." ~ Xue Feng

So far, I have been living in the Thai community for 18 months, which is a year and a half. My current weight is 58 kg, and I still need to take a small amount of medication every day, but I no longer suffer from insomnia. The symptoms of Plasma cell mastitis have been stable for 2 years. How did I achieve this? I practiced according to Lifechanyuan values and lived according to the community's program. Every day, I work half a day in nature, using a lawnmower to cut grass, or using a sickle to cut grass, planting flowers, and learning to grow vegetables that I like to eat, such as cucumbers, tomatoes, and water spinach. I also learn how to cultivate dwarf bougainvillea, gomphrena, and purslane flowers. In the afternoon, I spend half a day promoting Lifechanyuan values in English online. I think the hardest time for me was shortly after I arrived at the Thai home. My strong secular consciousness clashed too much with those chanyuan celestials' in the Thai home, which led me to leave the area where the eight members lived and move to the mango garden, where only I and Brother Daqi lived. Fortunately, later, Yaqian and her 4-year-old son, Dengdeng, moved into the mango garden. Now, a year later, we have lived with the sister named Yulin.

Especially during the three months of pure physical labor after I arrived at the mango garden, my mind was filled with thoughts and emotions about love and other distractions. However, I had to endure their influence on me. Finally, after three months, when I began to engage in the English promotional work that I enjoyed and was good at, my state started to soften significantly, and I began to learn about humility and gratitude. It was also due to the six hours of physical activity every day for those three months, primarily squatting and using a sickle to cut grass, that my weight naturally dropped to 65 kg. When I went to the hospital to weigh myself, I thought the scale was broken; I couldn't believe my eyes and never expected that I would really lose weight.

The 18 months of living in the Thai community has allowed me to once again appreciate the beauty of the lifestyle of the Second Home. Every day, I not only have the freedom to engage in regular physical labor but also get to do mental work that I enjoy and excel at. The food I eat daily consists of organic vegetables planted by the caretaker. Most importantly, as an ordinary white-collar worker who had spent years in a concrete jungle, I now have the opportunity to connect with, appreciate, and love nature, and I have been surprised and moved by nature, which has sparked a sense of gratitude in the Greatest Creator.

Why is that? For example, when I went to check the names and uses of the flowers, grasses, and trees in the mango garden, I was surprised to find that even a wild grass can have medicinal value. From my observations and research, only one plant called Bai Bao Xing Xing Cao is toxic throughout, while the rest of the grasses are basically non-toxic and have medicinal properties. Additionally, I discovered that several Camptotheca in front of my window contain components that can help treat cancer, and the Plantain trees in the mango garden also have cancer-fighting properties. Along with the many mango trees, longan trees, and a few jackfruit trees in the garden, I can even see the teak trees, known as the king of trees, from where I live. I am truly amazed by these plants.

Insects, too, such as millipedes, slugs, snails, and frogs, are mostly beneficial and harmless to me. Even the occasional snake and small lizards seem to understand our presence; they quickly flee or hide when I feel scared or shout. Not to mention the Thai striped cat named Mimi, who used to live here but was recently returned to the merit garden because of mating season, along with the fish in the pond and the flowers that provide me with loving energy. I have learned many insights and arrangements by Tao from them, which is why I refer to the mango garden as a sacred garden.

The wonderful feelings and healing I have experienced from work and nature are not the only important reasons. Of course, there are others! The Second Home of Lifechanyuan is an international community, which allows me to interact with visitors from different countries and meet true heavenly family members. Every time a visitor comes to experience the Thai community, I have the opportunity to participate in collective meals and game parties, such as enjoying hot pot, barbecue, dumplings, and pizza. After meals, we have karaoke sessions to showcase our singing voices and free dancing, and sometimes we play card games or other fun activities. What excites me the most is the large party events, especially the half-day game activities, which always bring me immense joy and fun. Such experiences are simply impossible to find in the secular world.

So, if I have no money, can I still go out? Can I still travel? My answer is, unless it is necessary, I do not want to and am not willing to go out! Unless I am going to work and live in Lifechanyuan International Family Canada Branch, or find other Chanyuan Celestials in different countries to help build the Second Home communities in their countries, this is my greatest wish: to roam the world by participating in the construction of 256 branches of Lifechanyuan International Family.

As for my food, clothing, housing, and transportation, everything is taken care of by the community. I don't need anything extravagant; what I currently have is basically enough to meet my needs. If I need something else, as long as it's not luxurious, the director will usually fulfill my request. Now, about emotional and physical intimacy? I believe this is where the true magic and charm of the community lie, and perhaps it's also the secret to my weight loss and improving health. Emotional and physical intimacy is my personal privacy, so I cannot and will not disclose too much. However, I can share how the emotional and physical intimacy provided by the male chanyuan celestials in the Thai community has elevated my experience. For instance, the emotional and physical intimacy here comes without the conditions often found in the secular world; it doesn't require money and has no strings attached. However, it truly tests the level of each person's cultivation and practice. Because whenever I feel unhappy, uncomfortable, or critical—if I dislike a particular male member—then there's definitely a problem in my relationship with him, and the issue can be quite serious. Ultimately, the one who gets hurt the most is me, while the other member or members may want to distance themselves and not engage with me further. This might also be what the guide, Xuefeng, emphasizes when talking about the perfection of the spiritual garden.

When my soul garden is not at its perfect state, I cease to be a flower, let alone emit any fragrance. So, who do I attract? I can only attract those male members whose consciousness and thought frequencies match my current state; in other words, if I'm not doing well, they won't be good to me either. This doesn't necessarily manifest in actions or words; more often, it reflects in my feelings and emotional state, especially in my mental and psychological well-being. I also encounter plenty of tangible feedback in reality, such as chest pain, accidentally stepping on glass, getting stung by insects, or injuring my hand. In short, the management and arrangement of Tao is subtle, miraculous, yet strict, and during such times, my consciousness of emotional and physical intimacy tends to align more closely with mundane consciousness.

However, once I sincerely repent and reflect, diligently study Lifechanyuan values, and do my work earnestly, I find that I gradually begin to understand more about the wisdom from Lifechanyuan values and increasingly recognize the importance of humility. I start to feel a state of being that is "Take things as they are, associate with others by following natural come-and-go relations, act in accordance with one's intrinsic nature, and take advantage of opportunities as they arise." I discover more and more the power and wonders of Tao. I realize that nothing happens by chance, and every issue has its cause. I also come to feel that the guide, Xuefeng, is truly a messenger of the Greatest Creator, who is the highest being in terms of spirituality and wisdom on Earth. I gradually become grateful for the wisdom of the Buddha, appreciate the great love of Jesus Christ, and increasingly hold reverence for the greatness, wisdom, and superpowers of the Greatest Creator. As I experience this elevated state more frequently, my feelings of emotional and physical intimacy also become more stable and closer to the noble, elegant, and non-mundane nature of the celestial beings in the Thousand-year World.

Moreover, when I see Yaqian and her son— Deng Deng—living in such peace, tranquility, happiness, and joy in the merit garden of the Thai community, I can finally affirm without a doubt that Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch truly is the kingdom of the Greatest Creator in my heart!

Conclusion:

During my time living in Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch, I also met many kind-hearted Thai uncles and aunties, who treated me as if I were their own family. Even though there was a language barrier, our kindness and simplicity connected us. This is one of the fundamental reasons why I cherish and feel grateful for Lifechanyuan, as it allows me to encounter and recognize good-hearted and genuine people from different countries who like and appreciate me. What is the primary reason? It is that I have successfully lost weight and am gradually regaining my health, feeling increasingly grateful to the Greatest Creator for experiencing the freedom and diversity of emotional and physical intimacy, along with the beauty and happiness that come with it.

I know that my new life has just begun, and I am starting my practice with the "51 Guidelines for Beginners to Cultivate"!

After over 30 years of trials and tribulations, I can finally learn to calm down, speak more gently, practice humility, embrace simplicity, and appreciate each day living in Lifechanyuan International Family Thailand Branch.

I am grateful for the continuous guidance from Guide Xuefeng, for the teachings and blessings from the gods, Buddhas, celestials and sages, and most of all, for the grace and love from the Greatest Creator.

May the Greatest Creator continue to bless me, urge me, and encourage me until I complete my mission on Earth and successfully arrive at the island of Celestial Islands Continent in the Elysium World that YOU have prepared for me.

Amen!
